The Art Department offers BFA, BA and BAIA undergraduate degrees in Studio Art, the BA and a Post Baccalaureate Licensure in Art Education and a BA in Art History. The MFA degree is offered in Studio; an MA can be pursued in Art Education; and the MA and PhD degrees are possible in Art History. In all of the work leading to these degrees, the importance of the arts as communication, in the past, the present and the future, is pivotal. This belief is the keystone of our programs, and it is the foundation for our primary goal, which is to expose students to the richness of art through a wide range of new and traditional media. We also seek to develop critical thought in our classes, and the practice and methods for understanding the teaching of the arts and the history of art.

The Department is dedicated to providing the best education possible no matter what degree a student might be pursuing. The Department is dedicated to benefiting UNM, the city of Albuquerque, the state of New Mexico, as well as national, and international communities. To achieve these aims, the Department is committed to maintaining a world-class faculty that is actively engaged in creative art, art education, and art history.
ART & ECOLOGY
Art & Ecology is an interdisciplinary, research-based program engaging contemporary art practices. Graduate & undergraduate students develop land and cultural literacy with a conceptual foundation and a wide range of production skills, including sculpture, performance, analog & digital media, & social practice.

EXPERIMENTAL ART + TECHNOLOGY
Experimental Art & Technology at UNM is an interdisciplinary experimental program within the Department of Art. The program fosters an atmosphere of radical creativity & thoughtful engagement with emergent & established technologies. Students are expected to make work that comments on, engages with, & expands our notions of what technology based art can be through courses that explore high tech immersive environments alongside consumer electronic hacking & simple analog circuit building. Labs are equipped with industry standard software as well as free open source analogous software options. Studio production is coupled with critical inquiry into the relationship between art, technology, politics, society and culture.

ART PRACTICES
Art practices interdisciplinary curriculum is structured around thematic units, introducing students to the conceptual issues that all artists must consider. In each of these units, studio assignments and readings are designed to expand students’ understanding of fundamental ideas by exploring new and unexpected approaches. These themes include light, frame, mark, motive, change, and time.

CERAMICS
Ceramics at the University of New Mexico supports the development of diverse personal visions, ranging from utilitarian pottery, vessels, objects, sculpture and installations, to site-specific works and community-based, art-as-social initiatives. Special emphasis is provided in the time honored traditions of Pueblo Pottery, which are explored through field based research and studio engagement.

PHOTOGRAPHY
The University of New Mexico’s photography program was one of the first MFA programs in photography in the country, awarding its first degrees in 1968. Under the direction of Clinton Adams, who served as the Dean of the College of Fine Arts from 1961-1976, the photography studio art and history of photography programs began to take shape at both the under-graduate and graduate level during the 1960s. The University Art Museum’s collection of photographs grew substantially under the leadership of Van Deren Coke, who was hired to be the chair of the Art department and the first director of the museum in 1962; the museum now maintains one of the most significant collections of photographs housed at a public university in this country. Beaumont Newhall, photo historian and author of the seminal textbook The History of Photography, was hired in 1971, and contributed significantly to the development of the graduate program in the history of photography.

PAINTING AND DRAWING
The Painting & Drawing area’s reputation is founded upon its deep commitment to personal expression, experimentation, & risk taking, while remaining rooted in the fundamental understanding that painting & drawing are unique in their history & methodology. Painting & Drawing at UNM has a long & important history in American Art, including both faculty & alumni. During the 20th century, artists such as Raymond Jonson, Florence Miller Pierce and the artists making up the Transcendentalist Painting Group were deeply connected to UNM, & artists like Richard Diebenkorn & Agnes Martin have been associated with the school. Close connection to Native American & Hispanic fine arts traditions energizes the European traditions of into the 21st century.

PRINTMAKING
Printmaking is the historical frame through which all artistic media are still referenced. The UNM Printmaking Area has a strong national reputation & attracts many students to both its undergrad and grad programs. Many of our former grad Printmaking students are now teaching in various universities & leading contemporary Printmaking into the next generation. The Printmaking Area has offered over one hundred community outreach projects and has collaborated with many different groups, including public schools and non-profit organizations, both nationally and internationally. There is a large group of printmakers in the Southwest and the UNM Printmaking Area serves an important leadership role to this group.
ARITA PORCELAIN VESSELS PROGRAM
The Arita Porcelain Vessels Program introduces UNM students to traditional creative processes from Arita, Japan that have evolved over the past 400 years. Students practice 'art as a way, not a thing' resulting in layers of creative practice within each porcelain form. This handmade ‘true porcelain’ is the most durable ceramic, with glaze colors becoming brilliant and translucent after the firing. Students create functional works reflecting a unique aesthetic from this time and place, with the connection to a living art.

GRAPHIC DESIGN CONCENTRATION
UNM Art’s Graphic Design concentration provides students with an opportunity to expand upon their fine art studio practice through the integration of design thinking, visual communication, and commercial application.

SCULPTURE
The sculpture programs at UNM offer an exciting and diverse choice of approaches toward working three-dimensionally. Options include techniques in woodworking, metal fabrication and casting. Additive and subtractive processes in hard and soft materials as well as innovative approaches to installations and site-specific works are also included in our curriculum.

SMALL-SCALE METAL CONSTRUCTION AND CASTING
Is offered at all undergraduate levels each semester. Levels I and II are devoted primarily to fabrication/construction processes in silver, copper, and brass. Included are such techniques as soldering, forming, coloring, and various finishing processes. Level III concentrates on lost wax casting in bronze. Lectures and demonstrations on brazing may also be offered. At the advanced level, the student essentially writes their own program through discussions with the instructor. Emphasis is on form generation as it relates to intimate scale.

RADICAL ART & ECOLOGY LAB
(RAVEL LAB) Radical Art & Ecology Lab offers field-based Art & Ecology courses in both Fall and Spring Semesters. RAVEL Lab inspires and supports the entanglement of transdisciplinary creative practices with ecological research and community engagement in Northern New Mexico.

ART HISTORY
The art history program emphasizes the study of visual art as a means of understanding the intellectual and cultural history of humanity. The program provides a firm grounding in global art history within the context of a liberal arts education. Undergraduate work covers the broad range of art history leading towards graduate work for the M.A. and the Ph.D. degrees, organized into two major concentrations: Art History and Arts of the Americas. The curriculum in each area of concentration is nationally and internationally recognized.

Art History Concentration - The concentration in Art History encompasses the entire field of art historical studies and is grounded in a cultural analysis of artistic expression. A broad variety of objects are explored, ranging from the traditional fine arts to popular and innovative media. Such contextual approach and wide-ranging theoretical frameworks together with more traditional studies of style, iconography, and medium, illuminate the visual arts within the intellectual and cultural history of humanity.

Art of the Americas Concentration - Arts of the Americas brings together the arts of pre- and post-contact cultures of North, Central, and South America. Integral fields of specialization include Meso-American, Central and South American art, architecture and performance arts, ancient and modern Native American arts, Spanish Colonial art and architecture, and nineteenth through twenty-first century Latin American arts. This concentration promotes the study of continuity and discontinuity in the history of art and architecture in the Americas.

ART EDUCATION
The Art Education Program prepares art education professionals to meet the needs of diverse populations in schools and community-based centers in the state and nation. The undergraduate and graduate art teaching programs educate students toward becoming reflective art professionals who can encourage students and clients to create their own artwork in response to their life experiences in our visually complex society. In addition, as future teachers students learn how to teach about art in varied cultural contexts using best teaching practices.

(3 credits) (Formerly ARTH 101) In this class, students will be introduced to the nature, vocabulary, media and history of the visual arts, illustrated by examples drawn from many cultures, both Western and non Western and across many centuries. We will begin with a general overview of the subject, including basic concepts and themes that shed light on the continuity of the artistic enterprise across the span of human experience. We will study the visual elements from which art is made, including how artists use these elements and how the artists’ use of visual elements affects our experience of looking at art. We will examine both two-dimensional and three-dimensional media including drawing, painting, printmaking, camera and computer arts, graphic design, sculpture, installation, crafts and architecture. Selected works will be examined in context, including the history of the time and place in which they were created, as well as their function, patronage, and the character and intent of individual artists.

(3 credits) Offered with ARTH 429.001 and 529.001. We will explore the notion that the fourteenth century was a pivotal period for the Middle Ages through the art of wars, plagues, and everyday life. By the end of the semester, you will have a more nuanced understanding of this century which brought innovation and change to the Middle Ages. You will have analyzed both primary and secondary text sources, as well as works of art and architecture from this period.
(3 credits) Offered with ARTH 429.002 and 529.002. This class will disrupt the norms of Native studies and art history as a foundation to explore the intersections of queer and trans Indigenous art, literature, and theory. Through critical reading, deep listening and looking, we will examine art and expressions of those who are Indigenous and occupy gender-diverse and sexually diverse roles within community. Along the way, we will question what queer indigeneity does: the sort of possibilities, affective spaces, intimacies, and modes of ethics it elicits.

ARTH 389  Queer Indigenous Expressions

Sec 002 CRN 77284  Ernest  TR  2:00–3:15  CTRART

(3 credits) Offered with ARTH 429.003 and 529.003. In recent years, the field of design has attained elevated status. Universities have developed advanced degrees in Design Studies and Design History, art museums have increased their focus on exhibitions and collections of design objects, and design stores and fairs have multiplied in number and popularity. Many prominent contemporary designers have been blurring the distinction between design and fine art by adopting styles, themes, and production techniques traditionally associated with progressive fine art. The purpose of this course is to provide students with an in-depth introduction to the most prominent of today’s designers, and to reveal the ways in which contemporary design practices connect to the history of design, issues related to industrial labor, and the conceptual practices of today’s fine artists. Featured designers include Philippe Starck, Constantin and Laurene Boym (Boyin Design Studio), Campana Studio (Fernando and Humberto Campana), Hella Jongerius, Marc Newson, Studio Job (Job Smeets and Nynke Tynagel), Takujin Yoshioka, Joris Laarman, and Jomo Tariku.

ARTH 389  21st Century Design

Sec 003 CRN 77287  Lumpkin  TR  3:30–4:45  CTRART

(3 credits) Offered with ARTH 429.001 and 429.003. This course introduces selected artistic traditions, including Nicoya, Diquis, Tairona, Quimbaya, Muisca, Jama-Coaque and others. Designed as a general introduction to the most prominent of today’s designers, and to reveal the ways in which contemporary design practices connect to the history of design, issues related to industrial labor, and the conceptual practices of today’s fine artists. Featured designers include Philippe Starck, Constantin and Laurene Boym (Boyin Design Studio), Campana Studio (Fernando and Humberto Campana), Hella Jongerius, Marc Newson, Studio Job (Job Smeets and Nynke Tynagel), Takujin Yoshioka, Joris Laarman, and Jomo Tariku.

ARTH 402  Native American Art II

Sec 001 CRN 39279  Fry  MWF  1:00–1:50  CTRART 1020

(3 credits) Offered with ARTH 502, ANTH 401 and 501. This course is the first half of a two-semester survey of historic and “traditional” Native American/First Nations art of North America. In this semester, we will examine a wide range of arts and architecture from the Eastern Woodlands, Great Lakes, Arctic and Subarctic, Northwest Coast, and California, from the archaeological past to the present. (The second semester, Native American Art II, deals with the Great Plains and Prairie, Plateau, Great Basin, and Southwest regions.) Certain themes will run throughout the course: discussions of indigenous epistemologies and aesthetic systems, the meanings and functions of art in Native societies, the limits of extant art historical and other scholarly approaches to Native visual cultures, and the myriad issues arising from intercultural contact and colonial conflict.

(Students do not have to take Native American Art History I and II in order, and may take only one of the two courses since they are not cumulative and have different cultural and geographic subject matter. Likewise, please note that this course does not deal extensively with “contemporary” works of art, which are the focus of Art History 415/515, “Modern and Contemporary Native American Art”, as well as other topics courses on contemporary Native arts.)

ARTH 413  Pre-Col Cen & N So Amer Caribb

Sec 001 CRN 77292  Jackson  TR  9:30–10:45  CTRART 1020

(3 credits) Offered with ARTH 511, ANTH 420 and 570. Pre-Columbian cultures of Central America, Northern Andes and the Caribbean are renowned for their production of dazzling gold objects, ceramics, sculpture and architecture. Yet the social networks and meanings of the artworks are often unclear. Geographically occupying a critical juncture between major continents and famous empires, the people of these intermediate areas developed visual cultural traditions uniquely divergent from their more well-known neighbors. This course seeks to contextualize those artistic traditions within larger social structures. Designed as a general survey with readings and lectures, the course introduces selected artistic traditions, including Nicoya, Diquis, Tairona, Quimbaya, Muisca, Jama-Coaque and others. No pre-requisites.

ARTH 425  19th Century Photography

Sec 001 CRN 77290  Mulhern  MWF  10:00–10:50  CTRART

(3 credits) Offered with ARTH 525. This course examines photography in the nineteenth century, including the medium’s prehistory, invention, and development into a viable and vitally important technology. Considering both theory and practice, students will study photography’s early employment as a means for making art, preserving memory, exploring the world, and conducting science. Students will also acquire the critical and technical vocabulary needed to describe, analyze, and formulate arguments about specific photographs and to discuss the ways in which these are relevant to the social-historical contexts from which they emerged. All students are expected to participate in class discussions and are invited to think creatively about how images reflect nineteenth century culture.

<td>Offered with ARTH 529.007. This course takes place at the UNM Art Museum (UNMAM) and provides students an opportunity to work closely with the museum’s permanent collection, gain knowledge of Postwar American art, and contribute to an exhibition scheduled for Spring 2025. UNMAM recently received a gift of 15 editioned prints and trial proofs by Helen Frankenthaler from the Frankenthaler Foundation. Drawing on the collection’s strengths in works on paper, the museum will mount an exhibition featuring the prints alongside works by other Modern and Contemporary artists. Printmaking in America exploded in the Postwar period as artists partnered with publishers, producing work that relied on close collaboration with printers, opened avenues for experimentation, and expanded the market for their work. This class examines the graphic art of artists such as Helen Frankenthaler, Elaine de Kooning, Louise Nevelson, Robert Motherwell, and Richard Diebenkorn, and provides hands-on experience developing an exhibition on this material. In addition to completing a final research paper, students will contribute to the exhibition’s planning, design, research, and didactics.</td>

<td>Offered with ARTH 554. This course will cover the major events, key figures, and dominant themes associated with art production in Mexico during the nineteenth century. With the objective of tracing the historical developments that resulted in the formation of the modern Mexican state, we will start in the late colonial period and discuss the independence movement (1759–1821), followed by close study of the early national period (1821–1900) through the start of the Mexican Revolution in 1910. Central to our study and discussion of visual and material production in nineteenth-century Mexico will be recognizing the central role of politics in art production and noting how the arts developed in concert with shifts in the political and cultural spheres. With this in mind, among the topics to be covered are included: the Academy of San Carlos, the Mexican Independence movement, the arrival of foreign traveler-reporter artists, the U.S.-Mexican war, costumbrismo, history painting, the introduction of modern museology, José María Velasco and landscape painting, José Guadalupe Posada and popular printmaking, early photography, Indigenismo, and modernist tendencies in Mexican art. Course requirements will include the following: weekly readings, two book reports, and four in-class quizzes. Graduate students will have the same requirements as the undergraduates, in addition to developing a research paper and giving an in-class presentation of their research at the end of the semester.</td>

We examine analytically the various styles of influential art critics of the late 20th and 21st century, and the types of information provided in statements made by important contemporary artists. The course is designed to provide students of art history and art studio, as well as any student of critical non-fiction writing, with an introduction to the ways in which written assessments are used effectively to adjudicate and or illuminate contemporary art.</td>

ARTH 529  Visual Sovereignty & Archive
Sec 004 CRN 77306  Ernest  T  4:00-6:45  CTRART
(3 credits) This seminar focuses on affect, rhythms, and aesthetic trends of Native American art of the United States and Canada to consider how film and photography—historically used by non-Native people as a tool of colonialism—are being reclaimed by Native artists. Our focus will be on the visual as an arena in which cultural meaning is constituted and power relations played out. Within this general framework, we will open photographic and film archives to new forms of analysis and examine visual culture and soundscapes from specific times in American history: portrait photography and ethnographic filmmaking at the turn of the twentieth century, Hollywood’s frontier representations of Indianness in motion pictures, social guidance classroom films from the 1950s, and digital video surveillance cameras in the twenty-first century. All of these carry legacies of intense racial coding, ones which Native scholars and artists have critiqued with counter discourse and works of ‘visual sovereignty.’ The readings are representative of recent scholarship in the field, and focus on studies of Native American art history, critical Indigenous studies, photography, film, and remix culture.
This graduate seminar considers artistic and creative practices in Palestine and its diaspora, from the first Nakba in 1948 to the current and ongoing genocide. Through an analysis of various mediums—painting, murals, graffiti, cartoons, graphics, video, installation, and performance art, as well as poetry, embroidery, film and theatre—students will study the history of Palestine through the lens of its creatives. By centering artistic strategies through which artists situate a history of settler-colonialism, dispossession, and border violence, students will engage with broader themes of decolonization, diaspora, testimony, memory, love, joy, and radical imagination as resistance. The seminar will conclude with the role of art in the global solidarity movement with Palestine and the censorship used against Palestinian and Pro-Palestine artists. Students will produce both scholarly research and creative projects that can be shared with non-university audiences.
